

COMMERCIAL SECURITY SOLUTIONS

Commercial CCTV systems are a crucial part of business security. It is an important way to protect business and improve security, and the below details some reasons why.

- Prevent crime by making business premises less attractive to intruders.
- Insurance reductions with a monitored and maintained commercial CCTV system.
- Gain insights to business such as foot fall or for marketing purposes.
- Legal protection against health and safety or public liability claims as well as keeping remote or lone workers protected.
- Remote access to view IP CCTV footage from anywhere in the world as long as internet connection is available.
- Check for alerts from commercial alarm system by viewing the footage in real time from smartphone.
- Alert the Police that a burglary is in progress and record vital evidence that can be used by Police in any prosecution.

Installing these full-time security guards around the business premises is a no-brainer.

To achieve the best possible security, CCTV system can be integrated with other security systems like intruder alarms and access control. The moment another part of the system's triggered, notification is received and the premises can be checked immediately via CCTV.

Security systems deployed in commercial sectors have the following key-benefits:

Proper security systems increase the credibility and star-rating of hotels and prompt management to factor in CCTV installations as a priority.

CCTV cameras come in handy in monitoring medical facility premises and improve overall security. Medical staff can keep an eye on patients remotely from a central control point instead of having a team in every ward.

Business owners can now monitor their businesses remotely by using CCTV security systems in real-time from phones.

Private residences have also jumped on board this bandwagon as a risk management solution for its residents. In high-end properties, CCTV cameras are used alongside intercom systems to buzz in visitors into the premises.

Let us improve your business!

CONTACT US TODAY >

